

I Only Need One

By: Kaylah Spangler

I know what I want.

I want to inspire the world.

My dream is to use my words and font
to make others imagine

a better place than the one we have created for ourselves and our future generations.

How do others feel

when they read a beautiful story?

*One that makes them wish to steal
a character to keep.*

They feel a sense of glee,

but may also choose to weep.

when I write a short, sweet story

or a damn long poem

I feel as if I could change the history,

affect the future,

inspire the modern.

This is why I will be an author.

I will go to college, to learn and study

the written word and the art
of our influence with everybody.

Though I may be underprivileged,
I still intend to start up the hill of satisfying my heart, unfed.

It is just one job that may change my life.

But wearing this one "hat"
may cause others to give pause and think,
"What can I strive to accomplish for the world and I?"
